MRS. HUMISTON NOW REAL POLICEWOMAN

Her Efforts Expected to Be Centred Largely on Cases of Missing Girls.

Mrs Grace Humiston, the woman law-yer who solved the mystery of fluth Cruser's disappearance after the police had falled, has herself joined the Police Department. Commissioner Woods yesterday appointed her a special investibepartment. Commissioner Woods yesterday appointed her a special investigator, with authority to wear a badge, carry a revolver and a whistle and to execute warrants.

Mr. Woods expects Mrs. Humistop's aid to be of great value to the force and believes her official connection will be of assistance to her in Mr efforts to promote the welfare of girls. Her efforts are to be centred largely on missing girl cases. She will receive no salary unless the Hoard of Aldermen votes her remuneration.

Mrs. Humiston expects to go to Albany early this week to ask Gev. Whitman for the right to issue sugamonses for witnesses. This power, she sayz, would facilitate her investigations greatly.

According to one report, a certain motorcycle policeman talked with Alfredo Gocchi, Miss Cruger's murderer, an hour before Cocchi went into hiding. The slayer complained that he was being hounded by newspaper men and policemen and seemed to be greatly agitated.

"I laughed at him and told him he had nothing to fear," the motorcycle officer in a second of the motorcycle officer in the motorcycle of nothing to fear," the motorcycle officer was reported as having said of Cocohi. "He was much excited and in order to allay his fear's I latingingly told him that even if the girl's body were found in his cellar he could not get more than twenty years in prison."

The policeman did not report the incident to his superiors. When questioned by an Assistant District Attorney he is said to have replied that was no part of his work, that he was assigned merely to look after violations of vehicle and to look after violations of venicle and traffic laws.

Another atory discussed in the Crimical Courts Building had to do with the finding of a girl's skirt by children who were playing on made land on the North River front at the foot of West 121st street one day last March. Torus fragments of hiotting paper also were found and on one of them was said to be written in a girl's hand;

"SOS Ruth Cruger & Reld."

One of the children took these articles home and eventually they came into the hands of a private detective. It was reported they were shown to Mrs. Humiston and she said that neither the garment nor the handwriting was Ruth Cruger's. The part of the story which is being investigated is that one of the children, accompanied by her father, went to a policeman in Broadway and remotical in the professor.

The New York Athletic Club, colors were arrected at the New York Athletic Club, Traver Edund, where the reception was best men. Consumers Are Invited to Participate.

John J. Dillon, State Commissioner of Foods and Markets, has addressed to "Mr, Business Man" a pamphlet in which he outlines a new plan through which he says the food problem can be solved. The scheme provides for: 1. Cooperation of business man,

1. Cooperation of business man, bankers, manufacturers, retailers, consumers and farmers.

2. An assembling market to include:
(a) Packing and grading facilities;
(b) A wholesale supply for local retailers; (c) A canning or drying plant; or both; (d) Storage.

3. Management to include: (a) An organized personal force; (b) General market and price information; (c) Shipments to metropolitan markets; (d) Price publicity.

4. A delivery system.

The system would require buildings, and equipment and the details of an or-ganization to provide these facilities. Mr. Dillon says, are a matter for local comnew law and may wish to finance the undertaking as a municipal enterprise in whole or in part, and in other places the burden of financing the system will have to be assumed by the individual and business interests of the city.

Under a strictly cooperative system, including farm and city, the Commissioner explains, the farmer's produce is received on consignment. The actual cost of grading and packing, canning or drying is charged to the farmer. He is drying is charged to the farmer. He is credited with the daily worth of the goods received and he kels a weekly account of sales and check when sold. Through reports from the farmers the plant manager is kept posted at all times not only regarding the stock he has on hand, but also concerning the stock he will have on band during the next day or two. He is thus in a position to fill advance orders from other markets.

Duty of the Manager.

In explaining the relation of the com munity market with other markets Mr. Dillon says: "Obviously the principal duty of the manager in his relation with outside markets will be to know which of them will give film the best price for the products he has to sell.

"The Department of Foods and Markets has openinged a service which will

"It is prepared to keep any plant organized along these lines in touch at all times with the prices in the big city markets.

"It must be borne in mind," the Commissioner says, "that every community in the State has its own peculiar problems. The plan we have outlined will meet the needs of many communities in essentially the form in which we have presented it. In some a still simpler plan may be entirely estisfactory. The needs of a few may call for more elaborate facilities. orute facilities."
